TURCO-MONTENEGRO TROUBLES.

A Clear Statement of the Situation.

LONDON, July 24.—A Reuters telegram from Vienna published here purporting to give an account of the negotiations between the powers on the Montenegrin question. England, according to the dispatch, proposed to Turkey to cede a Dalmatian or carry out the protocol of last April. The Porte declined to cede Dulcigno and asked a delay of three months to carry out the Montenegrin convention. The powers refused and insisted on the immediate execution of the convention. While negotiations were pending, England anticipated the refusal of the Porte to take the initiative, effecting an understanding between the powers and make verbal proposals to five other cabinets for sending to the Turkish waters vessels from each power carrying troops for land service. Austria accepted, but objected to sending troops for disembarkation, and demanded that the fleet only consist of two or three vessels from each power. Russia adhered to the proposal without reservation. The other powers made reservation of points of detail, but, on the whole, a complete understanding was established on the expediency of a naval demonstration. Negotiations on the Montenegrin question are perfectly distinct from those in regard to the Turco-Greek frontier. The latter negotiations will enter a more active phase when the Porte has replied to the collective note. If the reply be negative it is considered probably that the naval demonstration will aim at the settlement of the Greek as well as the Montenegrin question. Ambassadors at Constantinople are making great efforts to induce the Porte to immediately accede to the demands of the powers, but the Porte is little disposed to comply. The Porte has made confidential overtures to several powers; more particularly Russia, England and Germany, the latter two powers second among the powers, and although this policy has not had the desired result, it is feared that the Porte still cherishes the hope of succeeding and thus continues in an unyielding spirit.

MORMON ANNIVERSARY.

SALT LAKE, July 24.—The Mormons celebrated their first entrance into the valley, 33 years ago, to-day with their usual elaboration. Good order prevailed and the discipline of the army was everywhere apparent. The procession embracing ten brass and military bands, representing sentiments, ideas, due to trades, industries and manufactures was an hour in passing, and was witnessed by from 10,000 to 20,000 spectators. There was a procession of motives; among the rest a happy polygamic family carried by said family in a wagon. Decorations were profuse and often tasteful. Among the evidences of material growth was one of growing in liberalism, namely, that of mining industry and products. Eleven years ago a coterie of prominent Mormons was prosecuted and excommunicated for advocating mining as a legitimate branch of industry in Utah. The ceremonies were concluded by a big tabernacle, and consisted of speeches and music. It was profusely decorated and full to overflowing. It presented an impressive spectacle. There was a less show of hostility to the government and outsiders than has been formerly made on this anniversary. The federal officers of Utah were invited to attend as guests, but as it was exclusively a sectarian demonstration they declined the invitation.

A BOLT.

A Fine Chance for a Democrat in Ohio.

CLEVELAND, O., July 24.—After a heated contest of five days, the Mayor W. G. Rose, and Amos Townsend, present congressman, the republicans of the 20th district held a convention to-day, which was marked by great bitterness. The friends of Rose, large minority in the body, bolted and held a separate meeting, and appointed a central committee to call a people's convention; also a committee to issue a manifesto to the voters of the district, setting forth their grievances. After repeated futile efforts to bring the bolters into the regular convention Townsend was re-nominated for congress. There is deep feeling on both sides.

COMPENSATION BILL.

LONDON, July 24.—At a meeting of the liberal members of the house of commons who are hostile to the compensation bill, they resolved not to support a third reading of the measure. Consequently an important section of the supporters of the ministry will abstain from voting on the question on Monday.

Very urgent whips, both of government and opposition, have been issued for Monday night's division on the compensation bill. The resignation of Earl Kennair as lord chamberlain, again rumored, it is believed that most of the Irish members will support the compensation bill and that it will pass the house of commons by a large majority despite the opposition whips and the abstentions from voting.

CRUSHED, BUT NOT KILLED.

LONDON, July 24.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says: It must not be supposed that the revolutionary spirit is exhausted. A large proportion of the nihilist leaders have been captured or driven abroad, and the intelligent classes are more hopeful and contented under Gen. Mordukhai's wise and liberal rule, but the roots of social malady are deep seated, and that the nihilists have not lost either hope or energy is shown by the appearance of a new number of the Vperednia Volia, covering six pages of close double columns octavo.

A perpetual injunction was granted against the defendant.

NAUGHTY ACKLIN

Causes a Commotion in the Convention.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 25.—A dispatch from Vermillionville, dated yesterday, says a mass meeting was held here to-day, called relative to congressional district matters. Hon. R. S. Perry, of Iberia, in addressing the meeting argued in favor of the regularity of the late convention. During his remarks he was frequently interrupted by Hon. J. H. Acklin, who finally characterized some of the remarks of the speaker as unqualifiedly false.

Perry replied in still severer terms, when Acklin rushed forward and attempted to strike him. A regular stampede ensued.

A motion to adjourn being declared carried, Acklin rallied his followers, and they proceeded to elect delegates to the district nominating convention.

Acklin claims that the action of the delegates from the third congressional district to the late state convention, in nominating Ballou as the democratic candidate for congress was irregular.

The contest in this district promises to be lively.

Gen. Bium, pasha, who has just returned from a tour of inspection, recommends the construction of ten new forts on the straits.

ALL FOR LOVE

LONDON, July 26.—Accounts of the recent death of Mrs. Annie Wetmore, an American lady, in Paris, are conflicting. A Paris dispatch says: "Mrs. Wetmore was thirty years old, and of great personal beauty. She made the acquaintance of an Englishman of title, who pressed her to obtain a divorce in order to marry him. She agreed to do so, and obtained a divorce, but just as she received information that a decree in her favor had been granted, she learned that the English lord was about to marry another woman. A stormy interview took place between them, at which the lord offered her pecuniary indemnity. This final outrage rendered her disappointment unbearable, and she then poisoned herself."

The Paris Golos says: "Mrs. Wetmore died of congestion of the brain, and not by suicide."

BLOODY MURDER.

George Blanton Shot and Instantly Killed by Jack Cobb.

ATHENS, TENN., July 24. MR. EDITOR:—The crime of murder seems to be most alarmingly on the increase in our state and country. There is an ever-increasing disposition among our people to use force instead of reason, and to substitute passion for the law. Your own paper, Mr. Editor, during the past week, "chronicled" four cases of murder right here in the midst of our East Tennessee society. Whither are we tending? Are we not fast passing under the control of "border ruffianism?"

One of the four cases of murder above alluded to occurred in our county of McMinn, in which Jack Cobb, with the inevitable pistol, shot and instantly killed George Blanton. The parties had had a previous difficulty a few days before about some trifling matter, and on the day of the killing they, with others, met to work the road, and after exchanging a few ill-natured words, Cobb drew his pistol, levelled the deadly weapon, and sent a leaden messenger crushing immediately through the heart of Blanton, who fell forward on his face, and, in the language of witnesses at the committing trial, "was dead before he struck the ground." They are both young and unmarried men. Cobb was admitted to bail in the sum of $2,500.

What is to be done to check and stop this epidemic of crime that is sweeping over our state? Our own papers are almost daily filled with the most horrible details of crimes, of brutality, and deeds of violence, that are a burning shame and disgrace to our boasted civilization and Christianity. Has our criminal law become a dead letter upon our statute books? Has our standard of morals, and public sentiment, fell so low as to produce this seeming and utter disregard of the sacredness, supremacy and majesty of the law? If our people longer connive at, or merely tolerate such bloody crimes, or falsely sympathize with criminals, then we have absolutely nothing to hope or expect in the future, but that murder, lawlessness and crime will be ripe and rampant throughout the state and country.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.

Short History of the Famous Monolith.

New York Herald, 20th.

The steamer Dessouk, under command of Lieutenant Commander Henry H. Goringe, United States navy, came into New York harbor last night. She was first sighted off Fire Island at a quarter past seven o'clock and reached quarantine some five hours later. She has brought to New York the new famous obelisk that is to be erected probably in Central park, and for the immediate acquisition of which the city is indebted to the generosity of Mr. William H. Vanderbilt. It is one of the two needles of Cleopatra that stood for centuries on the shores of the Levant near the city of Alexandria, and that for centuries before guarded the doors of the temple of the Setting Sun at Heliopolis. Its mate, which had fallen from its pedestal in Alexandria, was sent to England in 1819, and only received there in 1878, through the efforts and personal sacrifices of Prof. Erasmus Wilson. The present obelisk, so say the Greek and Latin inscriptions on its base, was built by Engineer Pontia, at the order of Barbas, prefect of Egypt, in the eighth year of Augustus Caesar's reign, or twenty-two years before the beginning of the Christian era. It was removed from Heliopolis to Alexandria during the reign of Tiberius, but was erroneously believed to have been removed in the time of Cleopatra, and hence it was called Cleopatra's needle. There is little in the history of this relic with which the readers of the Herald have not been acquainted. It is by far the most peerless treasure of the kind that ever came to the new world from the old. The remarkable emblem found engraved upon the stones at the base of the monolith have stirred the Masonic fraternity all over the world and are likely to excite the attention of the Masons of America for many days to come.

The programme for unshipping and erecting it here has not been completed, but Masons in all parts of the country have expressed a desire to share in the performance. It is said that the unshipping will be accomplished by the same means employed in placing it on board the Dessouk. The steamer will be first lowered on a dry dock, and then the obelisk will be slid upon two rollers, on under either end. The machinery made in Trenton last fall, and used in Alexandria for lowering the column, will be employed again for its re-erection. It mainly consists of two great trunnions that are employed for suspending the weight of the needle.

Lieutenant Commander Goringe sailed from New York on his mission to Egypt on August 26, 1879. The obelisk was formally ceded to himself and Lieutenant Schroeder by the governor of Alexandria on October 23, and the work of removal began the same day. During the accomplishment of this task the citizens of Alexandria manifested considerable opposition, and the creditors of the Egyptian government threatened to seize the needle. Commander Goringe flung the American flag from his treasure on the thirtieth of October, and on the fourth and fifth days of December, when it was being lowered, the Russian sailors in that port came generously forward to his assistance.

The Dessouk is a vessel of one thousand and sixty tons, and carries about thirty men. She was built in England and bought by the Egyptian government while yet on the stocks. She was purchased from Egypt for her present use by Commander Goringe, and she left Alexandria on the twelfth of June and Gibraltar on the twenty-fifth.

An Ante-Bellum Hen.

Mrs. Rose, who lives in East Knoxville, has a hen that commenced laying before the war, and has kept up a steady business in that line ever since. She is grey-headed, and labors under the disadvantage of failing eyesight, and the eggs have been irregular and ill-shaped for the last few years.

Good Apples.

This office acknowledges the presentation of some excellent apples by Mrs. Frederick Pegg. They are of the "white cheese" variety, and grew on Mrs. Pegg's place in East Knoxville.

Chattanooga has a telephone exchange, and the Times is happy. Old Mack can now sit in his office and hear the popping of champagne bottles on Lookout mountain.

A strange coincidence is found in the fact that Winfield Scott Hancock, James Abraham Garfield and Chester Abolom Arthur each carried twenty letters and the next president will be the twentieth.
